25. I Learned How to Cook

Last summer, my parents were both busy with work, so I decided to learn how to cook simple meals. At first, I was nervous about using the stove and cutting vegetables. My mom taught me step by step, starting with washing the rice and then stir-frying some eggs with tomatoes.

The first time I cooked, the eggs were a little burnt, but the rice was perfect. I felt so proud when my parents tasted my food and smiled. Through this experience, I learned that cooking is not just about making food—it's about showing love and taking responsibility. Now, I often help my mom in the kitchen, and I even try new recipes sometimes. I believe that learning new skills makes life more colorful and meaningful.
