Because climate (气候) changes all the time, it’ s becoming even more difficult to grow more food. When farmers tried to grow more food in the past, some farming methods were used. However, those farming methods weren’ t always healthy for the environment. In fact, they were harmful to the environment sometimes. Could this problem be solved? These special robots move around on farms and collect information about crops (庄稼). They can take pictures of plants and track (追踪) each plant’ s growth. By collecting information about plants, the robots can help farmers predict the growth of the plants. That means farmers can know how their plants will grow.
